

for delivery of said medication to the wearer when the medical condition is detected; and, a communication device located within each remote monitoring unit that transmits collected physiological data from the remote monitoring unit to the central monitoring unit.

Please omit claim 12. And insert as claim 12. The following: The monitoring system of claim 1. Wherein said transdermal device includes a method of propelling high concentrations of a said medication or bioactive-agent transdermally.